Several minutes passed, but no help came. The air-conditioning had died out, and the lift became really stuffy. We were sweating buckets. We tried to ring the emergency alarm again. Every second that passed was painful. "Help!!!" I screamed at the top of my lungs, trying to get someone's attention. A wave of despair washed over me. I felt like we would never make it. In one last effort, I tried banging on the doors. The next few minutes felt like hours as we waited in complete silence.

Bang! My hopes were lifted when I heard the firefighters on the other side of the lift door. Help was finally here! The brave firefighters hit the doors open using their tools. It felt like a hundred pound weight was lifted off me, and Mrs Lim thanked the heavens that someone had come to our rescue. I made a sigh of relief when the doors were finally opened and all this drama was over. The firefighters praised me for helping Mrs Lim. I returned their praise with gratitude and Mrs Lim thanked me and even gave me a hug.

试音材料

M: Excuse me, can you tell me how much the shirt is?

W: Yes, it's nine fifteen.

Text 1

W: You're late for work. Did you stay up last night?

M: Well, I did. I carried out an experiment until 2:00 o'clock. And I set my alarm clock but it didn't go off this morning.

Text 2

M: Will you come to my office to get your health report?

W: Oh, I will work overtime until nine o'clock. How about tomorrow?

M: Sorry. I have a meeting to attend.

W: No matter. My sister can pick it up. She can be there by 5:30 at the latest.

Text 3

W: Any volunteer wants to give a speech about sports in front of class today?

M: I'd like to have a try.

W: But I'm afraid you have a frog in your throat. That might come in the way of your presentation.

Text 4

W: Hello, I was hoping you could give me more information about your apartment.

M: I can try to help you. What would you like to know?

W: Do you know anything about the buses that stop there?

M: I don't know, but I'm pretty sure you can find out that stuff in the local library.

Text 5

W: Could you help me make a plane reservation?

M: I would be happy to help you. Where do you plan on going?

W: I am going to go to Hawaii and would rather leave in the evening.

M: Sorry, there are no tickets available for the evening. Would you prefer a morning or afternoon departure?

W: OK. I need to depart in the morning, but prefer to return in the afternoon.

Text 6

M: Hey, Hana. Did you watch "Taylor Swift: The Eras Tour"?

W: Of course. Taylor is my favorite singer.

M: Really? Why?

W: Mainly I like her look, you know. That red lips and white skin and blonde hair. Kind of typical American. When I saw her for the first time I was like, "Wow, she's elegant and graceful."

M: Wait, you mean, you saw her picture on the Internet or in the news or you saw her in the concert?

W: Umm ... I think it was on stream media.

M: I have an interesting fact about her. She is from my hometown actually.

Text 7

W: Hi, can you take me to 123 Main Street, please?

M: Sure, hop in. That'll be $15.

W: That's great. How long will it take to get there?

M: It should take about 20 minutes, depending on the traffic.

W: Oh, okay. I have a flight to catch in an hour, so I'm hoping to make it on time.

M: No problem. We'll try to get there as quickly as possible.

W: Thank you. Can you also tell me about any notable landmarks or places on the way?

M: Sure. On the way, you'll be passing by the city's financial district and the famous park.

W: That sounds interesting, thanks for letting me know.

M: My pleasure. Let me know if you need anything else.

Text 8

W: Todd, what are you up to over there?

M: Just packing up my old clothes. Thinking about what to do with them.

W: Are you planning to donate them or just throw them away?

M: I was thinking of recycling them. You know, give them a new life.

W: That's a good idea. I usually throw mine when they start looking out of fashion, though. I don't think anyone would want to wear them.

M: True. By the way, how often do you think about getting new furniture?

W: Almost never. It feels like such a waste to throw out big items. Remember when we moved in, and we got all new furniture?

M: Yeah, it was convenient, but now I'm more into second-hand stuff. It adds character to our home without breaking the bank.

W: Exactly! You can find beautiful antique pieces at a low cost.

Text 9

M: Welcome to "Vitality Vibes", your go-to show for health and wellness. Today, we're joined by Olga, who has been exploring self-healing. Olga, what advice do you have for our viewers to stay healthy?

W: Absolutely. Successful healing involves addressing three key opportunities. The first is toxicity—anything in excess. That's to say, even something good can turn into bad when you have too much of it. Not only food, but also thoughts and emotions.

M: That's interesting. What are the other two healing opportunities?

W: The second is deficiency. It's crucial to identify what you lack. Maybe lack nutrients, maybe short of self-love, or knowledge. The last one is stagnation. In other words, when something is stuck, like water, when it doesn't move, it becomes smelly. So ensure the flow of everything—oxygen, blood, and even thoughts and emotions. When stuck, it usually performs as pain.

M: So, we need to avoid being stuck in a fixed way of thinking and try to do new things, right?

W: Exactly. Accepting change is essential.

M: Great advice, Olga. Thank you for joining us on "Vitality Vibes" today.
